A VERY SPECIAL SCHOOL

Although the Mario Umana Harbor School of Science and Technology is not yet three years old, it already has an interesting history. It is a very special place in many ways, and in this our first yearbook we can tell the story thus far, so that years from now the record will still be clear.

In May, 1975, the U.S. District Court put into effect a desegregation plan for Boston's public scools. Part of that plan called for converting East Boston High School to a technical school, and another part asked Massachusetts Institute of Technology, Massachusetts Port Authority, and Wentworth Institute to assist the Boston School Department in planning and establishing that new school.

This partnership brought people from these four organizations and from other universities, other school systems, private industry, and federal and state agencies, to work at the task of defining the philosophy and goals of the new school and planning preliminary programs. There were many different teams, committees and councils at work from the summer of 1975 on.

In the spring of 1976 the federal court said that East Boston High School should remain a district high school and the new school should be located in a school building in East Boston that was almost finished (the "new" Barnes Middle School). The new technical school, the court said, would be for grades seven through twelve, but would not require entrance examinations. And the school was to open in September, 1976, for grades seven through ten.

During the summer of 1976, there was a rush of activity to get ready for opening the new school. While workmen were still finishing their jobs around the building, staff members and students were being assigned, school supplies were being delivered, and the school was being organized.

It was at this time that the Boston School Committee voted to name the school in honor of Judge Mario Umana. Judge Umana, a former state representative from East Boston, is presently in the District Court in Boston. He is a public figure of outstanding character who has on many occasions been involved in special school activities. He is very interested in the success of the school that bears his name.

The school opened in September, 1976, with about 450 students drawn from all parts of the city. It is the only school of its kind in Boston, the only school that was established by a court order and the only school that was established with the direct assistance of three outside partners.

During the first year, dedicated teachers faced many problems, such as lack of specialized equipment, lack of laboratories, supply shortages, and the fact that the building was designed for a middle school. But they laid the foundation for a dynamic school, and did it so well that in two years the Umana School was the number one choice of more students than chose any other magnet school in the city.

During the second year, 1977-1978, a major program of renovations went on in the building. New laboratories were created for aviation, medical technology, physics, and chemistry. The computer center was completed and the closed-circuit TV system was installed. All of the open space instructional areas were enclosed by glass partitions to create individual classrooms. In addition, thousands of dollars worth of equipment arrived and the library was opened. The inconvenience caused by the renovation work affected all parts of the building, but the teachers and students were able to carry on anyhow.

The school year 1978-1979 is special because now there are students in all grades and the first graduating class is here. Renovations are going on again, but they are less extensive than last year's, and teachers and students know how to cope. Now that the pressure for renovations and equipment is decreasing, more attention can be given to improving the quality of the educational program.

The school has a proud history so far because many people in the Boston Public Schools, at MIT, Wentworth and Massport wanted it to be successful. Students and parents shared this goal despite the many difficulties of the early days. In the years that lie ahead, this spirit of determination and cooperation will keep the Umana School moving forward as a shining example of quality education for Boston's children.

UMANA ROTC

The Air Force Junior ROTC program continues to be a source of pride for all who are connected with the Umana School.

For the three years of its existence the ROTC program has achieved a higher percentage of participation than any other ROTC unit.

The primary purpose of the ROTC program is to make our cadets better, more informed citizens. It is hard work but there is time for more enjoyable pursuits. The following pictures were taken at the Annual Military Ball and the ROTC Awards Luncheon.

Photographs on this page were taken by Charles Joseph.

FLEXIBLE CAMPUS

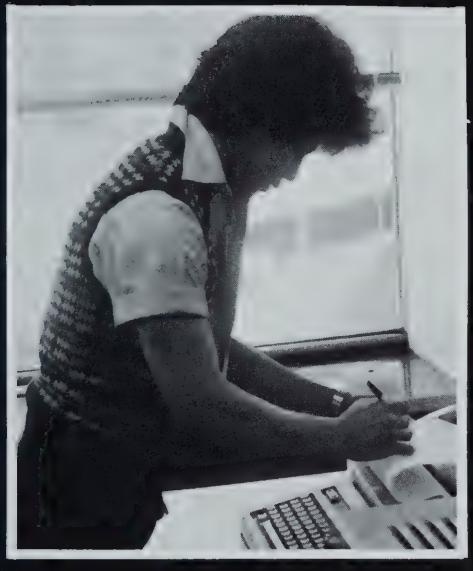
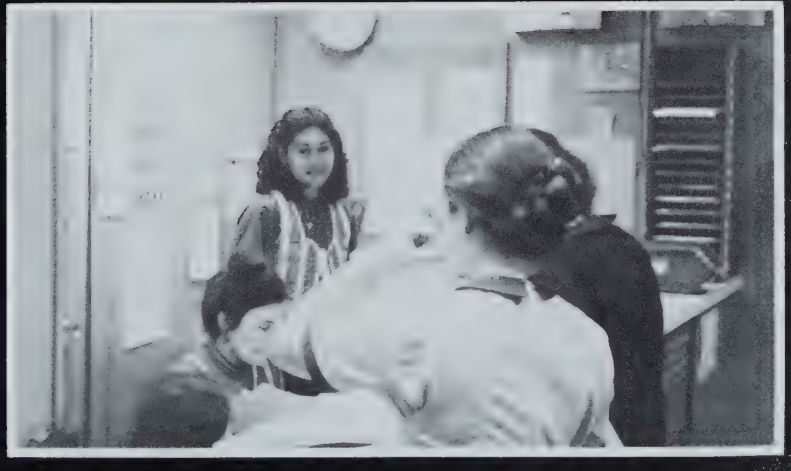
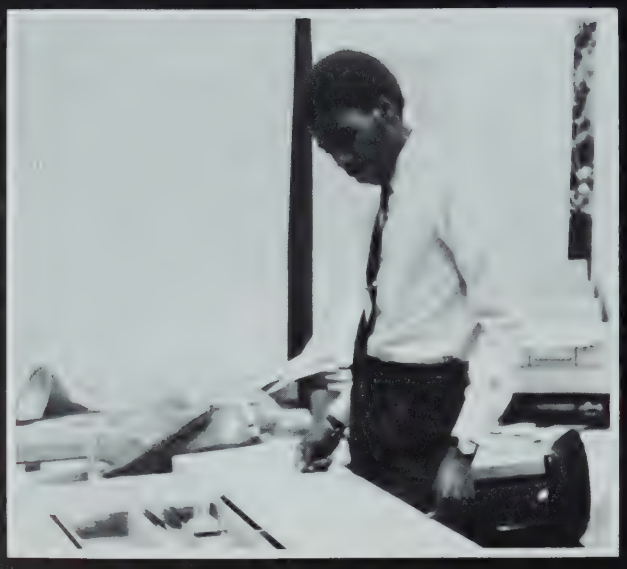
The Flexible Campus Program provides a variety of academic, vocational and cultural experiences for Umana students away from the school building both during and after school. Seniors and some juniors and sophomores have been selected this year for work internships related to their interests for future careers. Students worked this year at a variety of jobs at Logan Airport, at various engineering and architectural firms, and at hospitals and medical laboratories.

Photographs in the Flexible Campus section were taken by Tony Clary, a senior currently participating in the program.







UMANA ACTIVITY PERIOD

The Umana Activity period is a cooperative effort of the Mario Umana Harbor School of Science and Technology and the Exploring Division of the Boy Scouts of America. During the special period students explore with their advisors, subjects not in the regular curriculum, such as, scuba diving, auto mechanics and law. Additionally the program provides an opportunity for further study within the normal curriculum. The interest groups average about 15-20 students and all sessions are nongraded.

This year, thirty-nine different subjects were conducted by volunteer school teachers, navy crewmen from the U.S.S. Bigalow and other adults with expertise in a specific area of interest.

The Activity Period Program has enabled the school to provide a new demension in education for it's students.

1978 - 1979 UMANA SOCCER

The 78-79 Soccer season ended in great success for the Umana Soccer Team. After only three seasons in the City of Boston Soccer League the Umana team has brought itself to the top of the standings and to be one of the most challenging team in the league. This season two members of the team, Pierceson Depeiza, and Frankie Tse, were chosen to be part of the city-wide Allstar Team. The team has demonstrated great potential for participation in the state tournament and perhaps next year will be the year.

The Umana pucksters completed a most successful season. They swept their first seven games, lost a couple of close contests, and finished in second place with an eight win-three loss-one tie record. This excellent performance qualified the Eagles for the State Hockey Tournament for the first time in the school's history.

The stellar performance of many players accounted for the Border Street Brigade's success. Offensively, Captain John Bradley teamed with Steven Kane and Keith Bean to become the highest scoring line in the conference. Complementing this trio was the superb two-way play of the freshman line of Mike Tevenan, Ken Flagg, and Tom Lewis. In the rear, defensemen Jack Leffel, John Dillon, Anthony Mattaliano, and George "Buddy" Beal, along with goaltenders Joe Finnigan and Mike Masello thwarted many enemy attacks.

Next season promises to be as successful as the current one. Twenty lettermen are returning. With increased experience their already praiseworthy performances should improve.

"Same here!"

The Umana basketball team started the year with new coaches and mostly new players. The team was made up mainly of freshmen and sophomores with juniors Nelson Piacenza and Tyrone Townsend being the varsity elder statesmen.
Each player had been forewarned that tryouts would be rigid and it takes more than talent to play for Coach Glover. Fifty players tried out for the varsity and junior varsity teams. Nineteen of the players made the team and fourteen of them had WHAT IT TOOK to finish the season.
Umana played what Coach Doherty of Dom Savio called the toughest schedule of any Division III team in Eastern Massachusetts. That included Savio, Stoughton, Acton-Boxboro, Whittier Tach. of Haverhill, and the talented Boston teams such as Roxbury and Charlestown.
Do not weep though, for the Umana "Eagles", because you have to "play the best ot become the best and we have now paid our dues. So congratulations to Nelson Piacenza, Melvin Keith, Nate Smith, Michael Harris, Arthur Edwards, Miguel Marinez, Louis Larry, Kelvin Keith, Gordon Gleaves, Kevin Ashton, Paul MacGregor, and Eric Francis; you have passed initiation. Continue to work hard over the summer men, and Umana will be state tournament bound and Mr. Glover will be restored to his Coach-of-the-year status.
Thanks for technical assistance and moral support from Assistant Coach Dennis McHugh, Statistician Bonnie Levine, and managers James Jeter and James Morris. Remember that a team is more than a group of individuals, but a "family" brought together for a common purpose. Yes, TEAM is spelled B-R-O-T-H-E-R-S after all.

The Umana girls, in only their second season of varsity competition, had an exciting and outstanding 10 win, 4 loss season. Hardwork, determination, teamwork, and lots of spirit enabled the team to win 8 games in a row to finish 2nd in Boston's Division 2 and become Umana's first girls' team to earn a birth in the Massachusetts State Tournament.

The Most outstanding player of the season was Senior co-captain Cynthia Shephard, selected for the 2nd year to the City of Boston Division 2 All-Scholastic Team and averaging 18.4 points per game. The most valuable player was Sophomore co-captain Daphne Redmond.

BASEBALL

Umana's baseball team concluded a very successful season under the guidance of coaches Perdigao and Rooney. The year's high points included thrilling come from behind victories against East Boston, Burke, and Charlestown. The team was sparked by the hitting of E. Neal, and good fielding by K. Flagg, T. Lewis, and catcher J. Guarino. The excellent outfield of B. George, M. Marinez, and R. Cruz, also played a strong season. With some fine pitching by N. Piacenza, B. McDonough, and P. Casey, Umana found itself right in there with the best. The team had to win their last two games against Latin Academy and Jamaica Plain to make the State Tournament.

This "never say die bunch" won the first game handily but could not put it all together for the second, thus ending a very fine season of 11 wins and 5 losses. Although we did not make the State Tournament, we knew in our hearts that we were a "State Tournament Team".

Standing (left to right) J. Guarino, M. Marinez, E. Neal, K. Flagg, J. Dillon, and Coach Perdigao. Kneeling (l. to r.) N. Piacenza, B. McDonough, T. Lewis, B. George, R. Cruz, and Missing: P. Casey.

The most outstanding player was E. Neal (right) who had a fine season fielding, led the team in batting, and was also in the top five in the city with an average of 424. The most valuable player was co-captain N. Piacenza (left) who had an excellent pitching and fielding season and finishing second in team batting averages with a 356.

THEY

They were to be objective, but were biased;
They were to impart knowledge, but gloated it;
They were to share, not just show;
They knew the spectrum colors of red, orange, yellow, green, blue, indigo, and violet; but preferred to dwell on Black and White;
They had six hours each day to expand a young mind, but worked 5 days a week to control it;
They are few, but alas; They reach many.

Many people have been involved with our effort to make the Umana School an outstanding resource for young people in Boston. In the next two pages, we acknowledge with deep gratitude the importance of their contributions.
